Descriptive Statistics

	N	Minimum	Maximum	Mean	Std. Deviation
Academic	6408	1.00	5.00	3.2363	.92256
Valid N (listwise)	6408

The parameter academic consists of 9 items that measures curriculum, employability, experiential learning, practical training, students participation in curriculum design etc and it was measured on a 5 point Likert scale, the normality curve derived on a consolidated score shows that the data is normally distributed with a mean of 3.2363 and SD of 0.923. The total number of respondents were 6408 with no missing data, the bell-shaped curve shows that the data is normally distributed and it is not skewed.

The mean value is 3.236 for the total population (N= 6408), the mean value indicates the average ratings given by the population on a five point Likert scale (1-need to improve, 2-average, 3-good, 4-very good and 5-excellent), the average population ratings falls between 3-4 that mean between good and very good. This means that, on-average, the data points in your dataset cluster around 3.24. In a bell curve, the mean is the highest point on the curve, and it represents the most probable value. The Standard deviation indicates the dispersion of population relative to the population mean. the standard deviation and mean (average) are essential statistical parameters that provide information about the distribution of data. A smaller standard deviation indicates that the data points are clustered closely around the mean, while a larger standard deviation suggests that the data points are more spread out.

With a standard deviation of 0.923, it implies that the data points in your dataset are relatively close to the mean of 3.24. Specifically:

- About 68% of the data points fall within one standard deviation of the mean. In your case, this would be approximately between 2.317 and 4.163 ( $3.24 - 0.923$  and  $3.24 + 0.923$ ).
- About 95% of the data points fall within two standard deviations of the mean. In your case, this would be approximately between 1.394 and 4.486 ( $3.24 - 2 * 0.923$  and  $3.24 + 2 * 0.923$ ).
- Approximately 99.7% of the data points fall within three standard deviations of the mean. In this case, this would be approximately between 0.471 and 5.009 ( $3.24 - 3 * 0.923$  and  $3.24 + 3 * 0.923$ ).

So, the standard deviation of 0.923 in your bell curve indicates that the data is relatively tightly clustered around the mean of 3.24, and the majority of data points are within a relatively small range of values around the mean. This suggests a relatively narrow and well-concentrated distribution.

Assessment and Evaluation:

The parameter assessment and Evaluation consists of 9 items that measures internal evaluation, evaluation fairness, schedule of mid and end term, ICT enabled exams, exam grievances, COE sensitive towards students quires, degree granting procedure, assessment and evaluation norms etc and it was measured on a 5 point Likert scale, the normality curve derived on a consolidated score shows that the data is normally distributed with a mean of 3.2239 and SD of 0.9171. The total number of respondents were 6408 with no missing data, the bell shaped curve shows that the data is normally distributed and it is not skewed.

This means that, on average, the data points in your dataset cluster around 3.22. In a bell curve, the mean is the highest point on the curve, and it represents the most probable value. The Standard deviation indicates the dispersion of population relative to the population mean. the standard deviation and mean (average) are essential statistical parameters that provide information about the distribution of data. A smaller standard deviation indicates that the data points are clustered closely around the mean, while a larger standard deviation suggests that the data points are more spread out.

With a standard deviation of 0.917, it implies that the data points in your dataset are relatively close to the mean of 3.223. Specifically:

- About 68% of the data points fall within one standard deviation of the mean. In your case, this would be approximately between 2.306 and 4.140 ( $3.223 - 0.917$  and  $3.223 + 0.917$ ).
- About 95% of the data points fall within two standard deviations of the mean. In your case, this would be approximately between 1.389 and 5.057 ( $3.223 - 2 * 0.917$  and  $3.223 + 2 * 0.917$ ).
- Approximately 99.7% of the data points fall within three standard deviations of the mean. In this case, this would be approximately between 0.472 and 5.974 ( $3.223 - 3 * 0.917$  and  $3.223 + 3 * 0.917$ ).

So, the standard deviation of 0.917 in your bell curve indicates that the data is relatively tightly clustered around the mean of 3.223, and the majority of data points are within a relatively small range of values around the mean. This suggests a relatively narrow and well-concentrated distribution.

With a standard deviation of 0.927, it implies that the data points in your dataset are relatively close to the mean of 3.27. Specifically:

- About 68% of the data points fall within one standard deviation of the mean. In your case, this would be approximately between 2.343 and 4.197 ( $3.27 - 0.927$  and  $3.27 + 0.927$ ).
- About 95% of the data points fall within two standard deviations of the mean. In your case, this would be approximately between 1.416 and 5.124 ( $3.27 - 2 * 0.927$  and  $3.27 + 2 * 0.927$ ).
- Approximately 99.7% of the data points fall within three standard deviations of the mean. In this case, this would be approximately between 0.489 and 6.051 ( $3.27 - 3 * 0.927$  and  $3.27 + 3 * 0.927$ ).

So, the standard deviation of 0.927 in your bell curve indicates that the data is relatively tightly clustered around the mean of 3.27, and the majority of data points are within a relatively small range of values around the mean. This suggests a relatively narrow and well-concentrated distribution.
